Several shots had a few minutes before been fired and it was shortly after the men returned to their work that the accident happened. Immediately a messenger was sent to announce the unfortunate event to Mrs. Aggaze whose home is in Jamestown, but she arrived too late to again see her husband alive. The de- 6:45 p. m. But he did not complete the list then. The country newspaper man, dices of the people of his community pends. Yet he must be so indepenmust be an all around mental athlete: he must be a diligent reader of his the tone of the country press, while the metropolitan press is a very poor indicator of public thought in its community. It rather reflects personal views of its proprietors and its conduct indicates the newspaper owner's own ambitions and ends.

The country editor is in touch with all the people of his section in one way or another. The metropolitan newspaper man is in touch with very few, and by most of those he is more feared than respected. There are a few metropolitan newspapers which are directed along upper planes of purpose and managers conduct with an eye to the right, the best interests of the people at large, and the highest good of all touch with the people because by study of the country press-the habit of Greeley, Bennett and many another pioneer journalist-they ascertain the thought of the freedom of the land largely, and what it is that propels their minds in given directions and repells them in others. But we doubt very much if even these successful and high minded newspaper conductors could take charge of a country newspaper and carry it to success except after some long period of experience and hard probation. Mr. Landis is right when he says Country editors are born, or made only by the machinery of experience, and one cannot be made in a day.' But the country editor of all others is the most important factor in journalism simply because he is closer to the people of the land. He is more truly in their confidence. His sympathies are more nearly theirs, and his promptings in most cases reflect theirs, or if not, in the open issues he makes we may look for the true key to their thoughts, aims and wishes.-Record-

Want a Plan. The Deering Harvester Company, of Chicago, has applied to the Division of Forestry for a working plan for its 54,000-acre tract of hardwood timber Southeastern Missouri. This marks what is probably the first attempt of an American manufacturing establishment to employ modern forest methods in raising hardwood timber for its own use.

The timber owned by the company consists chiefly of oak, ash, and hickory, woods especially adapted to the manufacture of agricultural implements. The owners intend to remove all the less valuable species, such as cottonwood, gum, honey locust, and cypress, so as to give the others all possible advantage for growth. A plan will be made by which the merchantable timber may be removed without injury to the producing power of the forest. The Division will send experts to the tract to make the observations necessary for such a plan.

THE CRASH OF HEAVY GUNS.

Fearful Strain of the Concussion The stunning report of each gun as it is fired is something that a stranger on the deck will long remember. There is an old saying, "deaf as a post." Now, in the royal navy, this is changed to "deaf as a post captain."

No man can go through a long series of gunnery practices without having his hearing very seriously affected. Some men put cotton wool in their ears, but even this precaution does little to deaden the terrible shock. And if the firing of one or two guns has such a shattering power, what would be the effect if the whole armament were in action together?

It is almost impossible to conceive the strain upon nerve and senses of the rending concussion. If a visitor watches the firing of one of the monster 9 inch guns and then places himself beside one of the smaller pieces, the report made by the one will not appear much louder than that of the other. The extra distance to the muzzle of the big piece discounts the sound. The only apparent difference between the two appears to be that the small pieces have a sharper, higher pitched note, and that the 6 and 9 inch guns speak with more of a bellowing roar. One piece of advice may be given to any one who finds himself in the neighborhood of a gun in action. The been no time for regularity, no consider-ation of right food. Popping the Question.

A writer in Lady's Realm says there are certain precautions which all lovers should take when proposing. Never propose, says an old student of woman, when returning from the theater. She will be still under the spell of one of the actors, and beside his romantic figure you dwindle into insignificance. Her imagination is chilled by the process of digestion, while there is nothing that so degrades a man in a girl's eyes as to see him eat a hearty meal.

Was it not Charlotte Bronte who lost her admiration for Thackeray after seeing him eat? On the occasion of their first meeting at a dinner party Thackeray took Charlotte Bronte down to dinner. Thackeray was hungry, and as he ate steadily at his dinner her admiration and awe gradually faded away. At last, when she saw the great man of her visions attacking a huge potato, she called out in despair, 'Oh, don't, Mr. Thackeray!"

A Happy Expedient.

Some few years back a colonel commanding some marines was much exercised in his mind as to how to deal with two of his men who were continually fighting. Threats, pack drill and even cells were tried, but were of no avail. No sooner were they free than they flew at one another and were at it again with worse results than before.

At last he hit on a happy expedient. The next time the men were brought before him he set them to clean all the windows in the barracks, one inside, the other out, and neither to go to the next window till the other had finished. The next morning they started, and after glaring at one another for three or four windows the situation became too ludicrous. They both burst out laughing and have been good friends ever since.-London Answers.

The Snow Hurricane. The buran, or snow hurricane of the Pamirs, is a meteorological phenome non of great interest. Even in midsum mer the temperature during a snow buran frequently falls to 14 degrees F., while in the winter of 1892-3 it dropped to 45 degrees below zero at the end of January. The buran comes with startling suddenness, the atmosphere growing dark with whirling snowflakes where scarcely a minute before the sky was per fectly clear. Funny Men.

The jests of Heliogabulus were very practical. He was fond of inviting people with some physical deformity o dinner and making jokes about them. At times he would invite a dozen hunchbacks or a score of squinting ladies or an equal number of baldheads. Once he put a large number of excessively fat people, all very hungry, into a small chamber where dinner was waiting. There was no room to eat it. Another diversion of which he was fond was that of placing his guests on air sofas, so that when they were about to drink he could let the air out and have both sofa and guest collapse.

It is said that Nero, the Roman em peror. liked to "shy" nuts at the bald heads of the prætors who sat below during the performance at the theater, and they were expected to maintain their baldheaded dignity and refrain from "shying" them back at him.

BRYAN'S BIRTHDAY.

From the Brooklyn Eagle, a Democratic paper, we take the following unique eulogy of William J. Bryan, which appeared in its editorial columns on the morning of Bryan's birthday, about a month ago. It is rather rich reading, especially for Bryan Democrats:

"This is Mr. Bryan's fortieth birthday. No man so value, young as he was in 1896 was ever nominated by a great party G. Yale, the statisticism of the United for President before. George B. McClellan was thirty-eight, comparing the totals of gold and silver not thirty-six, in 1864. No man was ever nominated before from on the carrying power of a single speech. He apparently takes himself seriously and his party lightly. His prominency is important. Its overthrow is a little price to insure his primacy. He has convictions, but his strongest one is his right to be at the head. To him a party is a force made for his use and handling. A nomination to him is a role-not a trust or a responsibility.

Much interest is taken in the Republican Clubs' Convention which convenes in Los Angeles to-day. There are several candidates in the field for President of the League, among them being Colonel George Stone, the incumbent; General W. H. L. Barnes, George C. Pardee and George A. Knight. President Stone estimates that of the 2000 delegates elected to represent 208 clubs, 1200 will be present in person at the convention. San Francisco has sent from 150 to 250 delegates. Most of them left for Los Angeles last Wednesday.

An Interesting Description of the Masq. uerade Ball.

VOLCANO, April, 23, 1900. The much talked of masquerade ball of the Native Daughters took place last Friday evening in Armory Hall. The beautiful weather of the fore part of the week changed suddenly Thursday morning to a dreary cold rain which continued with short intermissions all through Friday and so kept at home many of those whose attendance were otherwise assured. A short lull in the storm enabled the members to enter the hall a little after 9 o'block without too much discomfort. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, partly in red, white and vellow bunting and partly in dark blue and orange garnished with ferns and artificial flowers. Chinese lanterns, banners and masks were suspended from the ceiling, the whole forming a brilliant setting for the motley throng of maskers. The goods and special sale. Ten dozen grand march was led by Mr. Elmer ladies' ventilated corsets, at 25 cents Boydston and Miss Annie McLaughlin. Considering the circumstances the attendance was very satisfactory. FIRST WIG IN HISTORY.

It Was Worn by the Daughter of Saul, King of Israel.

The first wig mentioned in history was made of a goat's skin and worn by the daughter of Saul, king of Israel. The first artistic wigs were made in the south of Italy for the Gapiniens, who lived in Apulia and were known for the luxuries of their toilet. These people were, they say, the first who painted their faces. This they did with the juice of strawberries.

The Persians wore wigs. Xenophon relates that little Cyrus, when he visited Astyages, his grandfather, whose eyes were framed in blue paint and who wore an enormous wig, threw himself on his knees and cried, "Oh, mother, what a beautiful grandfather I have!" Aglais, a maid of honor, was so struck by the appearance of the old gentleman that she remained with Astyages as a slave. The Phœnician women, who were proud of their hair, having been orper and a neglected euchre party. In his charlot he had hundreds of wigs of all colors.

Wigs were in vogue in Rome toward the end of the republic and so well made that, says Ovid, "no man could know if his wife had any hair at all before she had given him an opportunity of seizing her by the tresses.

Teutonic peasants were the provid ers of blond hair for rich Roman prin cesses, who loved the contrast of its flaxen hue with their black eyes. They even had morning - wigs, small and tightly curled, of any color, and they kept the beautiful fair ones to receive their admirers at night. A Question of Clocks. Which is the best, a clock that is right only once a year, or a clock that is right twice every day? "The latter."

you reply, "unquestionably." Very good, reader; now attend. I have two clocks; one doesn't go at all and the other loses a minute a day, which would you prefer? "The losing one," you answer, "without a doubt."

Now observe. The one which loses a minute a day has to lose 12 hours, or 720 minutes, before it is right again; consequently it is only right once in two years, whereas the other is evidently right as often as the time it points to come round, which happens twice a day. So you've contradicted yourself once. "Ah, but," you say, "what's the use of its being right twice a day, if I can't tell when the time comes?"

Why, suppose the clock points to 8 o'clock, don't you see that the clock is right at 8 o'clock? Consequently when 8 o'clock comes your clock is right. "Yes, I see that," you reply.

Very good; then you've contradicted yourself twice. Now get out of the difficulty as you can, and don't contradict yourself again if you can help it."-"Lewis Carroll Picture Book."

I don't mean the clans of Culloden described by the poet Campbell. I mean Culloden, W. Va. Well, sir, about half the population of the town doesn't live in the town and can't vote in the town, alhough they are right in the town. "I'll explain. The good people, and they are in the majority, too, are down on saloons and liquor in any shape. They got up a temperance meeting and ourposed to drive the liquor men out of own. When you find a West Virginian who believes in liquor, you find a man who is ready to fight for it. The liquor people got together and in some way got the confidence of the town engineer. I don't know whether he was a liquor man or not, but they got him on their side. The engineer discovered that the town was not laid out right, and he got authority to change the metes and bounds. When he finished the job, the temperance people found out that they lived just outside of the line of the town, no matter what part of the town their houses were in. A man could stand in his back yard and talk to the man whose place was right up against his place and who was a voter, but the first man had lost his

"The lines of the engineer excluded. as I have said, the temperance people. It took in the license folk all right. The map of Culloden as it is now looks a good deal like a sheet of paper after a fly with ink on its feet meanders across it. You can tell how a citizen of Culloden stands on the liquor question by the place where he builds a house, if he builds one, which doesn't often occur. In spite of its zigzag boundaries, however, Culloden is a contented community."-New York Sun.

A Painful Memory.

A lady who lives on Morgan street took her 5-year-old son to a photographer's to have his picture taken. She was anxious to secure a good likeness at this particular sitting because she wished to distribute the pictures among some friends who were then her guests.

The child's idea of the affair, however, did not apparently harmonize with that of his mother, for when the man with the camera began to adjust the lens and direct it toward little Edward that young person set up what was unquestionably a howl. In vain did the mother call into use her utmost forensic abilities. Edward did not want his picture taken. "Why, my child," she said soothingly, "the gentleman won't hurt you Just smile and keep still a moment, and it will be all over before you know

"Yes, I know, mamma," whimpered the youth, with the tears running lown his cheeks, "but that's what vo told me at the dentist's."-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE SAMPLE FIEND.

It Takes Lots of Material to Supply the Sampler's Demands.

Coming suddenly upon a salesman in a retail store who had a number of yard long lengths of new piques liberally sprinkled with those little price tags (the pins all stuck through the several thicknesses and bent down). one understood all at once the full import of the demands of the sample fiend. Marked off evenly like a checkerboard, with 17 price tags lengthwise and seven to the width, which made 119 to the yard, the salesman was going over the lot with a pencil, setting down the width and price on each. At one store the one who is at the head of each stock attends to the preparing of the samples of his particular stock. Thus the pique samples would be cut by one, samples of swiss by another, of organdie by another, and so on. In the silk department one man, who is kept for the purpose, does it all. And it takes all his time.

For people from a distance who do their buying by mail this is of course a very good method. But the part to which all sane people take exception is the senseless sampling of those who wander aimlessly about, evidently gathering samples as a thoughtless child sometimes pulls twigs in passing bushes. The worst of it is we have to pay for this senseless woman's foolishness, it being often observable that the biggest samplers are the smallest buyers. One clerk says that he has actual ly seen thrown upon the sidewalk the samples given to a woman after show-went to feed the insatiate crazy quilt flends.-Philadelphia Record.
